DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-3, 6-9 and 12-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tague et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,599,293).

Tague et al. disclose an apparatus comprising a barrel member (116) having an inner surface with internal threads (see Figure A below) with an exit port, a plunger member (27) disposed coaxially within the barrel member and a means for advancing the plunger member within the barrel member. The plunger member has a smooth outer surface (29B) and a helical pathway defined between the outer surface and the internal threads in the barrel member, whereby the bone graft material is guided through the barrel to the exit port along the pathway. The outer surface of the plunger has an outer diameter that is slightly less than the major diameter of the internal threads in the barrel member (see Fig 6A). The plunger member is rotatable and includes external threads that are complimentary to and engaged with the internal threads in the barrel member. With regard the statement of intended use and other functional statements; they do not impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over Tague et al. which is capable of being used as claimed if one so desires to do so. In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). Furthermore, the law of anticipation does not require that the reference "teach" what the subject patent teaches, but rather it is only necessary that the claims under attack "read on" something in the reference. Kalman v. Kimberly Clark Corp., 218 USPQ 781 (CCPA 1983). Furthermore, the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

Claims 1, 4, 5, 7, 10 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hawkins et al. (U.S. Patent No. 5,638,997).

Hawkins et al. disclose an apparatus comprising a barrel member (2) having an inner surface with internal threads with an exit port, a plunger member (4) disposed coaxially within the barrel member and a means for advancing the plunger member within the barrel member. The means for advancing the plunger member includes a pivotable lever (11) that includes a row of rack teeth engaged with a complimentary set of rack teeth (3) on the plunger member, wherein pivotal movement of the lever causes axial movement of the plunger member.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO-892 for art cited of interest.
